Foreign News.

TWO WEEKS LATER.

The American bark Rover arrived on the 30th ult., 16 days from San Francisco, bringing the United States mail of March 5, and a few New York papers to the 20th of March. By the "penny express," which has recently been started, brief telegraphic news from St. Louis to April 5, was received in San Francisco on the 12th. Our latest papers received 20th.

San Francisco, April 14.
London, February 15.

The news from beyond San Francisco comes to hand in rather a piecemeal shape, that in our latest papers having before been anticipated by telegraphic advices, and the news by the overland telegraph being too meager to prove of much interest. We make up our usual summary.

California.

For a summary of news from the Pacific Coast we refer to the interesting letter of our San Francisco correspondent.

The Japanese Embassy.—The steam frigate Powhatan, with the Japanese Embassy on board, sailed for Panama on Saturday last, at noon. At Panama, the Japanese Foreign Minister stated, the Embassy would cross the railroad by a special train, and would reach the steamer Rover on the other side, which will take them direct to Washington.

Arrival of the STEAMER.—The steamer Goldfinch, left April 5. She carried $1,615,787 in treasure, and 529 passengers. Among the passengers were General Sibley, of the Pacific Squadron, and General Johnson, later of Utah, whose recent detachment of the First California Guard fired a salute of seventeen guns.

Gen. W. O. Baldwin, Rev. Dr. Pierson, and Rev. J. S. Emerson, with their families, missionaries from the Sandwich and Micronesia Islands, went on the steamer to Canada, in May, in a 50 gun ship.

ments prepared by the Opposition were rejected by a large majority.

The Paris correspondent of the Times means a rumor that all military men and naval officers, who leave or absent, had been ordered by the French Government to join their regiments as soon as possible. The Imperial Guard was not exempted from this order.

The U. S. Minister at Paris, the Hon. Mr. Faulkner, presented his credentials to the French Court on March 4.

Napoleon's speech to the French Legislature, relative to the annexation of Savoy and Nice, was received with great enthusiasm.

Austria, in reply to the representatives of foreign powers, says that she is not directly affected by that annexation, and will not protest against it.

Despatches from other parts of Italy state that Napoleon's speech to the French Legislature was not favorably received.

The Italian party, say the Times, is the closing sentence of a letter which appeared in the last number of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser over your signature.

The vanity and self-conceit developed by the "hope" so expressed, call for a few words of comment, if, happy may they set as a warning to others who might be disposed to follow such an example, on the same principle that we nail carion to a blemish, with wings outspread, to frighten away the enemies of our chickens.

Sold your birth-right, indeed! What is the birth-right you write so glibly about? To honor the Queen—in obey the laws and taxes placed in authority over you—to pay your dues and taxes, in return for protection to life and property—constraining cheerfully to the necessary expenses of government, (for this is your duty to your neighbor,) not expatriating, nor litigious—not seeking to invest yourself with imaginary wrongs, trying to make yourself appear a martyr to principle—not seeking business notoriety beyond what cheap goods, ample advertisements, and chancing manners will give you; not seeking to any charlatans to secure wealth; not seeking to advance yourself by trading on the ignorance of your customers, whatever color they may be, or profiting by the sympathy of low natives in resisting so-called gross injustice. These high principles of duty to God, and your neighbor, cannot be sold; but there are a few things capable of being sold which had better be retained in stock. You can sell your birth-right—so far as you can individually the British flag, enveloped in which you can rave and rant round your store, never before, let us hope, used a cover to resist the laws; you can sell that good old song in a very cracked voice, at a high pitch, "Bonnes reves, on m'a veces sera" shall be slaves?

You can sell the dignity which pertains to any one who resists oppression with single hearted aim only; sell the poor kalmuks who expects to buy cheap from one who is about to close his business, and leave the country; sell your umbrellas (the soap given) and give the liveliest indications of selling everybody generally by appearing at your store front, and playfully putting your thumb and extended fingers to your nose, to the disgust of all those who were attracted by the noise and tumult.

The Prince of Wales was to leave England on a visit to Canada, in May, in a 50 gun ship.

Very Latest.—The greatest question is the annexation of Savoy and Nice to France, which has been definitely determined upon.

The second opposition was from the English press, and especially by those papers opposed to the Government, by which Napoleon is bitterly denounced.

The city article of the London Times of the 7th March says that although the discussion of the question of Savoy to France, Mr. Fitzgerald expressed a hearty endorsement of the Piedmontese party, in whose ranks the English had enlisted enthusiastic applause, and shouts of "Vive l'Empereur," and cries for annexation. The country was in a critical condition.

It was fully believed that the people of Central Italy would confirm the vote for their annexation to France.

The French cardinals and prelates had presented to the French Senate, demanding the maintenance of the temporal power of the Pope.

In the English House of Commons, on the 5th of March, during an incidentful discussion on the annexation of Savoy to France, Mr. Fitzgerald expressed a hearty endorsement of the Piedmontese party, in whose ranks the English had enlisted enthusiastic applause, and shouts of "Vive l'Empereur," and cries for annexation. The country was in a critical condition.

The city article of the London Times of the 7th March says that although the discussion of the question of Savoy to France created disagreeable impressions, the English bands opened that morning with an improvement, which was maintained to the close.
